TRADITION

Welcome to KESPER® a family company for generations

The company F. ANTON KESPER, founded in 1902, has a very close relation to the natural material wood. Our extensive assortment comprises household goods, baskets, small furniture, kitchen trolleys, storage boxes and office products. Space for 25,000 palette storing positions assure a high reliability of supply.

Our company philosophy is to preserve resources and to use them carefully. All articles of our 'Wood collection' originate exclusively from controlled European forestry (FSC® certified wood), from Asian natural rubber plantations or from sustainable cultivated woods.

As trend-setter we have been using bamboo in many products for years – also with FSC® certification. Our products are made without tropical deforestation.

We are a member of amfori, the worldwide leading federation of enterprises for open and sustainable trading. Together with amfori BSCI we improve the social sustainability of our supply chains.

Wood and bamboo products with FSC® certification from exemplarily cultivated woods

Wooden products are awarded with the trademark FSC® when they come from exemplarily cultivated forests or plantations. The forest cultivation is based on the strict environmental protection amendments of the 'Forest Stewardship Council®' and also factors in the high social and economic standards. The certified forestries have undergone an independent control and evaluation which proves the conformity of the subsistence strategy with the FSC® standards.

The FSC® is a non-profit international organisation where environmental associations, social organisations, advanced forestries and wood processing enterprises work together to reach the aim of an improvement of forest cultivation and environment. For more information see: www.fsc-deutschland.de

Environmentally responsible

Socially beneficial

PERFECT CUTTING
BOARDS FOR FRESH-
NESS &

BAMBOO CUTTING BOARDS

The bamboo blade (bot. 'Phyllostachys heterocycla var. pubescens') is due to its speed of growth one of the best renewable resources! There are more than 1.000 different bamboo species worldwide. Especially in Asia bamboo has an ecological, economical and cultural meaning.

We mostly use the botanic bamboo called 'Phyllostachys heterocycla'. The huge grass lignifies and is therefore a good material for our cutting boards, kitchen products and furniture. In reference to hardness and resistibility bamboo is comparable to many hardwoods.

Our oiled cutting boards are impregnated with food safe oil. This decreases the intrusion of dampness, makes the cutting boards more resistant and lowers the risk of early contamination. All our bamboo cutting boards are FSC® certified and originate from exemplarily cultivated woods.

PURE AESTHETICS, THAT INSPIRES DARK BAMBOO

Various techniques such as smoking or dyeing give our bamboo a darker colour. This approx. help it to match certain interior styles or colour schemes.

The darker colour does not affect the natural properties of bamboo, such as hardness and resilience.

So if you are looking for stylish items to give your home a unique look, the KESPER's dark bamboo series is just what you need.

THE ALL-ROUNDER
FOR CUTTING, ARRANGING AND SERVING

ACACIA CUTTING BOARDS

Worldwide grow many different species of acacia. We process exclusively acacia wood from South East Asia, such as Thailand and Vietnam. The wood colour reaches from dark brown to white. The acacia wood (bot. Acacia hybrid mangium x auriculif) is especially resistant to dampness and almost without deformation. This is the reason that acacia wood is especially suitable for cutting boards.

Our cutting boards are impregnated with food safe oil. This decreases the risk of the intrusion of dampness and makes the boards more resistant and saves them from early contamination.

All acacia cutting boards are FSC® certified and originate from exemplarily cultivated woods.

BEAUTY FOR THE KITCHEN

OAK CUTTING BOARDS

Oak cutting boards are tough and durable. Oak is a hard, dense wood that is highly resistant to wear and cutting grooves. Oak's natural strength and resilience make it ideal for everyday use in the kitchen. Oak also has an attractive, warm colour and a distinctive grain that makes every chopping board a real eye-catcher.

The wood surface is easy to maintain and, with regular care such as oiling, approx. retain its beauty and functionality for years to come. As well as being practical, oak cutting boards are a stylish addition to any kitchen.

BEECH CUTTING BOARDS

The common beech (bot. 'Fagus sylvatica') is a native deciduous tree that is widespread in Europe. It grows from southern Scandinavia to Sicily, and it's not uncommon to grow to a height of up to 30 metres and a trunk diameter of over 1 meter. After 80 to 120 years the trees are used in the wood industry. The wood is very hard and therefore ideal for processing into kitchen items such as cutting boards or wooden spoons.

In our range we have beech cutting boards that are made from untreated wood – the nature-identical surface gives the board a natural look. Our oiled cutting boards are impregnated with food safe oil. This reduces moisture penetration, makes the boards more resistant and reduces the risk of premature staining. All beech cutting boards are FSC® certified and come from sustainably managed forests.

SERVE WITH STYLE: SLATE AND BIRCH WOOD SERVING BOARDS IN THE CATERING TRADE

In modern catering, the presentation of food is becoming increasingly important as well as its taste. Slate and birch serving boards are an elegant and practical way to present food in style. Slate has an exquisite dark surface that enhances the colours of food. Birch wood, on the other hand, brings a warm, natural feel to the setting and lends a rustic charm to the food. Both materials are not only visually appealing, but also robust and functional, making them indispensable accessories for both restaurants and private parties.

CUTTING & CARVING – THE HYGIENIC WAY

PLASTIC CUTTING BOARDS

Plastic cutting boards are characterised by their exceptional robustness and are therefore perfect for everyday use in the kitchen. They are food-safe, which means that they approx. be used safely in contact with various foods without any unwanted flavour transfer.

In addition, plastic cutting boards offer high cut resistance so that they do not wear out or become damaged quickly, even with intensive use. They are dishwasher-safe for easy cleaning, while their heat resistance of up to 90 °C protects them from damage caused by hot pots or pans.

Another advantage is their ease of care: they require no special care instructions, making them a practical choice for any household.

MELAMINE & PP PLASTIC

Melamine is a special plastic that is extremely durable, dimensionally stable and temperature resistant. melamine has a non-porous surface, making it hygienic and ideal for use with food.

PP plastic (polypropylene) is a thermoplastic with high chemical resistance, temperature resistance and strength. PP is also lightweight, dimensionally stable and resistant to many acids, bases and solvents.

Another feature of PP is its recyclability, making it a more environmentally friendly option than other plastics.

Olive wood

The olive tree (bot. 'olea europaea') is a medium-sized tree, often knotty when old. It grows as an extremely branched evergreen tree and reaches a height of 10 to 20 m.

The olive tree takes time to grow, but it can live for several hundred years. Olive trees are only cut down when they don't produce any more fruit. Olive wood is very hard, extremely durable and virtually distortion-free. It is ideal for making cutting boards. The cutting boards are a real eye-catcher due to their special patterning!

Beech wood

The common beech (bot. 'Fagus sylvatica') is a native broad-leaved tree that is widespread throughout Europe. Its range extends from southern Scandinavia to Sicily. A height of up to 30 m and a trunk diameter of more than 1 m aren't uncommon. After 80 to 120 years, the trees are used in the wood industry.

The wood is very hard and therefore ideal for processing into kitchen items such as cutting boards or wooden spoons. The heartwood is light, with little patterning and a smooth surface. The reddish brown sapwood has a wild texture. Almost all KESPER beech wood products are made from FSC[®] certified wood.

Bamboo

Bamboo cane is one of the best renewable resources because of its growth rate! There are over 1.000 different species of bamboo in the world. Especially in Asia, bamboo has an ecological, economic and cultural importance. We mainly use the botanical bamboo called 'Phyllostachys heterocycla var. pubescens'.

This giant grass is woody and can be used to make our cutting boards, kitchen utensils and furniture. In terms of hardness and resilience, bamboo is on a par with many hardwoods. Many KESPER bamboo products are already made from FSC[®] certified material.

Pine wood

The pine is a coniferous tree and is the second most common forest tree after the spruce in Germany and parts of central Europe. However, the different species of pine can be found all over the world.

Pines grow largely straight in the forest stand, with a fully woody and cylindrical trunk. As a species that is undemanding in terms of environmental conditions, pine is very fast-growing. Furniture making is one of the main uses of pine. Pine is easy to work as it is very elastic and does not break easily. We mainly process pine wood with the botanical name 'Pinus sylvestris'.

Acacia wood

Many different species of acacia grow around the world. We work exclusively with acacia wood from Southeast Asia, such as Thailand and Vietnam. The colour ranges from dark brown to white.

Acacia wood (bot. Acacia hybrid mangium x auriculif) is particularly resistant to moisture and is almost impossible to distort. For this reason, acacia wood is particularly suitable for cutting boards in commercial use with high demands. Most KESPER acacia products are made from FSC[®] certified wood.

Birch wood

The birch (bot. Betula pendula) is a very fast and tall growing tree species. It can reach a height of up to 7 metres in the first six years. Mature birch trees can reach a height of 30 metres. The brown-white bark is characteristic of birch trees. This tree is quite common in Central Europe, Russia and Northern China. The light, slightly textured wood has long fibres and is particularly suitable for making toothpicks, cutting boards and other kitchen products. Most KESPER birch products are made from FSC[®] certified wood.

We also have products made from the following types of woods:

lotus (Schima wallichii), fir (Cunninghamia lanceolata) and eucalyptus (Eucalyptus spp.).
